

Technology could 'boost state service delivery to new level'

INFORMATION and communication technology (ICT) could put government service delivery on a new plane in education, health, and social services, Deputy Science and Technology Minister Derek Hanekom said yesterday at the launch of the Meraka Institute, an advanced institute for ICT, at the Council for Scientific and Industrial Research in Pretoria. Sapa

